Today:

I. Today I accomplished the following:

I continued working on my project, trying to make an array of player weights. It's still not working. I finally figured out how to add players to the search box

II. I had difficulty with the following:

I had difficulty adding information from the database to my code. I also had difficulty making the search box work.

III. I need help with the following:

How to populate an array with data from the database. How to make the search box work. How to access a specific value from the array of players. Also, how to make it show just one player at a time.

IV. Other comments (optional)

I don't feel like I can finish this project by Friday.
